SHOPPING

Like all true girls, I love going shopping. I just wish I had more time to indulge my passion. When I'd mostly like it to have two full days where I could go to Harrods or Harvey Nichols and work my way slowly through every department to make sure I haven't missed anything. As it is, I'm so busy that I end up squeezing in a sneaky spree in between getting my nails done at the beauty salon or picking up the kids. Because of that, I usually end up going shopping on my own, but when I get the chance I do love getting dressed up in a nice pair of jeans and heels and going for a day in London with jamalala.

My shopping style could best be described as 'smash and grab'. I'll park outside a shop, run in, quickly scan through all the rails, then if I see something I like I'll just buy it in every colour. I do ever try anything on (unless of course I'm having something tailor-made) and I won't usually bother check the prices of things apart from when I'm sort of shop where you just know there'll be a few extra zeroes added on the end, in which case I take a little peek and think, 'How much for a T-shirt? They're having a laugh!'

I admit that it's not the most sensible way to buy clothes, as it usually means I'll come home with stuff that doesn't quite fit, or that I've got in my wardrobe but just forgotten about. I'm prone to doubling up on items when I shop at Abercrombie & Fitch, a great American brand I love for tracksuits and tops. I'll grab a couple of tops without even realising that I already have the exact same ones at home, and then

SHOES

My favourite shoe shops include Gina, Moda Pelle and Christian Louboutin, where I went mad when I was last in America and came back with loads of gorgeous heels. I also love Havaiana flip-flops and buy them in America where you can get them customised with diamante.

JEANS

In terms of fit and style, I don't think you can beat Frankie B jeans. I've probably got about sixty pairs, although I don't wear them that much. As a rule I prefer my clothes to look brand new and freshly washed, but I make an exception when it comes to jeans as I think a few rips can look quite sexy, especially a little one on the bum cheek. I used to purchase my own with rips and then have them

DRESSES

For fun costumes, I don't really go anywhere other than to the costume shops in London. They do all the body shapes perfectly and the styling is really fun – I've got a lot of costumes. I also like the costume shops in London. I like the costume shops in London.

JEWELLERY

When I'm looking for fun costume jewellery I go to places like Butler and Wilson, Miley and Fawcett in Tottenham, but for the real deal I use the jewellery designer who created the Royal family, so he certainly knows his stuff. I'm a jewellery freak. I wouldn't buy a designer outfit, but I'd happily invest in a really expensive watch. The jewellery in my collection that I probably wear the most often is a pair of pear-cut diamond ear studs. When it comes to precious stones, I'll always go for diamonds over rubies, emeralds or sapphires.

My favourite earrings and one of my designer watches

WEDDINGS

I couldn't write a chapter on being a girl, not include the most lavishly gilded moment of my whole life – my wedding day.

Ever since I was a little girl, I had walking down the aisle to marry me in a sparkly pink dress with a large big crown – the whole fairytale of course I got to live out my big knot with Pete in 2005.

It was haute couture designer who turned my wedding and the end result was I imagined. The dress was

Alex Blasts
'WHY WOULD SAVE OUR MARRIAGE?'
star refuses Alex's plea for marriage counseling because of... and Peter Andre

'Alex feels he's been duped'

WHY WOULD ANYONE WANT TO MARRY ME? Alex Blakesley asks in a scathing attack on his estranged wife, Jordana, in the new issue of OK! magazine. The 31-year-old actor, who has been married to the 27-year-old model for three years, is accused of cheating on her with his ex-girlfriend, the singer Posh Spice. Jordana, who is pregnant with their second child, claims that Alex has been unfaithful since they met in 1997. She says that he has been lying to her about his past relationships and that he has been hiding his true feelings from her. Alex, who is a member of the band The Saturdays, denies the allegations and says that he has been honest with Jordana about his feelings. He says that he has been trying to make their marriage work, but that Jordana has been making it impossible. He says that he has been trying to get her to see a therapist, but that she has refused. He says that he has been trying to get her to see a therapist, but that she has refused. He says that he has been trying to get her to see a therapist, but that she has refused.

Her marriage appeared to be on the verge of collapse just two weeks ago, as Jordan and Alex filed for divorce. But within her everything that—including that she'd managed to salvage it—was still going to relations were the cause of a pickled divorce because now that Jordan doesn't want to be back in her perky-tanned, blonde, she's refusing to seek professional help—and even blaming therapy for the breakdown of her previous
